Future Ready™ · Week 6

YOUR FIRST $45,000 JOB

Life · Money · Choices · Tradeoffs · Financial Stability

ESSENTIAL QUESTION

What does earning $45,000 actually mean for the life I want to build?

THIS WEEK

You landed your first full-time job.

Your annual salary is:

$45,000

That sounds like a lot of money.

But your salary is not the same as the amount of money you actually have available to spend.

Taxes, insurance, benefits, transportation, housing, food, savings, emergencies and everyday choices all affect what your paycheck can actually support.

This week is not about creating a perfect budget.

It is about experiencing the decisions.

PART 1 · GROSS PAY IS NOT TAKE-HOME PAY

Annual salary

$45,000

Monthly gross pay

Do not assume this is your spendable income.

$ _____

Monthly take-home amount provided by your facilitator

$ _____

Difference between gross monthly pay and take-home pay

$ _____

Why might those numbers be different?

_____

_____

Before today, did you think about salary in gross pay or actual take-home pay?

_____

What surprised you?

PART 2 · BUILD THE LIFE

Your facilitator will provide your realistic monthly take-home amount.

Now build your month.

Do not simply choose the cheapest possible life.

Make choices based on what you think you would realistically want, need and value.

PART 4 · YOUR VALUES SHOW UP IN YOUR MONEY

A budget is not just numbers.

It reflects priorities.

What did you choose to spend MORE on because it matters to you?

_____

_____

What did you reduce or give up?

_____

_____

What expense did you underestimate before doing this activity?

_____

What expense felt less important once you saw the whole budget?

_____

Does this monthly plan support the kind of life you want?

[ ] Yes

[ ] Mostly

[ ] Not really

Explain.

$ _____

Revised money remaining

$ _____

PART 6 · FINANCIAL STABILITY

Think beyond simply “having enough money.”

What does financial stability mean to you now?

_____

_____

Why does an emergency fund matter?

_____

What happens when someone has no financial margin?

_____

_____

What is one financial decision that can create future freedom?

_____

What is one financial decision that can create future pressure?

_____

PART 7 · THE SALARY QUESTION CHANGED

Think back to Week 5 career exploration.

You explored possibilities, industries, roles and pathways.

Now add money to that thinking.

A career can interest me AND still require me to ask:

_____

_____

Besides salary, what else would you want to know about a job offer?

Check anything you would investigate.

[ ] Health insurance

[ ] Retirement benefits

[ ] Paid time off

[ ] Schedule

[ ] Advancement opportunities

[ ] Training

[ ] Job stability

[ ] Location

[ ] Commute

[ ] Remote / hybrid options

[ ] Work culture

[ ] Bonuses / incentives

[ ] Education assistance

[ ] Other: _____

Which THREE matter most to you right now?

2. _____

3. _____

Why?

_____

PART 8 · PREP FOR BRAD McMILLAN

Next, you will have the opportunity to learn from a financial professional.

Do not arrive with generic questions you could search online.

Use what happened during this activity.

The hardest decision I made today was:

_____

The part of money I understand LESS than I thought I did:

_____

Something about a first salary that surprised me:

_____

Something I want a financial professional to explain:

_____
